Judge Pitched Nine Innings of Good Ball, But Oh, You Sluggers!

PUT UP A LOSING GAME

Men Were But Children of Larger Growth at M. E. Sunday School Picnic.

For six weeks St. Paul's M. E. Sunday school planned for the picnic held yesterday afternoon at the Fair Ground. The affair proved to be a hearty success, for good-will, plenty of sports and free lunch including lemonade, ice cream and coffee. The proverbial picnic meal held the crowd, young and old, in the best of spirits. The athletic events scheduled were a source of amusement, for the candidates for any event were always more than could be accommodated. The base ball game, a challenge to the school from Mrs. Bodine's class, resulted in a score of 9 to 4 in favor of the challengers. The main features of the game were the pitching by Judge Sparks, the splendid work on first base by E. B. Thomas, and the heavy hitting by Sheriff King. Two baggers and spectacular catches were quite frequent happenings.

The pie eating contest by Donald Moore, Curtis Dawson and Robert Vredenburg was won by the first named and created much merriment. The tooth pick race, the bicycle race, the potato race, the egg race, the relay race, the hill rolling contest, and the horse shoe pitching were spirited contests, but the real simon pure joy for the smaller children was auto speeding around the race track. Charles Algar, Guy Gordon, O. H. Bradway and Dr. W. C. Smith were the most popular men on the grounds, with the gasoline going.

The picnic dinner was spread at half-past five o'clock, and never was a meal more enjoyed or better prepared, for the dessert consisted of twelve gallons of delicious ice cream and fifty large cakes.

The school is to be congratulated on the success of the entertainment which will no doubt prove itself a lasting benefit. Supt. E. B. Thomas is receiving congratulations from all quarters for the excellent management of the affair.

ARE PLANNING FOR A BIG TOURNAMENT

Tennis Players of Gun and Country Club Prepare For Tourney in Near Future.

REQUESTED TO HAND IN NAMES

The tennis players of the Gun and Country club are planning to hold a tennis tournament sometime in the near future as soon as the courts are repaired. The promoters say that the games will all be singles until a number of champions are chosen by the weeding out process and then a series of doubles will be pulled off. Whenever a player loses a set, he is then out of the tournament. Those who desire to take part in the tourney are requested to hand their names to Posey Denning or Will McColgin.

SEEKING MURDERER ALL OVER THE STATE

Sheriff of Morgan County Sending Out Cards to Locate George Ferrand.

KILLED A MAN LAST FALL

Charles H. Marley of Martinsville, sheriff of Morgan county, is sending out cards over the State seeking information as to the whereabouts of George W. Ferrand, and Sheriff King is in receipt of one of them.

Ferrand is wanted for murder and the cards give a description of him. According to the card, Ferrand murdered Noah E. King in November, 1903. He, previous to that time, served a sentence in the Michigan City prison for manslaughter and was released in 1902.

The man sought is described as being a laborer, inclined to drink to excess and quite talkative when under the influence of liquor. He is five feet, five and one-half inches in height, has blue eyes, fair complexion, brown hair about thirty years of age and weighs about 130 pounds.

HOBOES HELD UP BREWERY AGENT

Quartette of Weary Willies Were Unsuccessful When They Tackled Clen Miller.

Starting the Desperate and Ungrateful Knights of the Road to Flight.

Clen Miller had a trying and thrilling experience with four young hoboes late yesterday afternoon, who tried to hold him up after he had befriended them. Miller is agent for a brewery company and keeps a storage near the C. H. & D. passenger depot. He was there engaged in unloading some beer and ice when the juvenile knights of the road happened along. They asked if they could help him and "the day being warm and the task a large and arduous one, of course Barcus was willing." Miller joshed the fellows along good naturedly and said he was going to give them the old biblical vineyard salary of a penny a day. While Miller was on the outside of the cold storage, superintending the work at the freight car near by, two of the lads "copped out" a number of bottles of beer which they drank on the sly. They soon adopted a system on Miller, two working outside with him while the other pair remained inside, and between rolls at the keg and the handling of ice, took on a quantity of the cooling and refreshing beverage.

It wasn't long until the quartette was under the influence of the "cool and exhilirating" and began to get real roughish. Filled with the German courage, they planned an attack on their benefactor. Miller was dressed in a "Si Plunkard" make-up. which he effects when at work on the brewery wagon and on this account they evidently took him for a come-on and a yap of the purest hay serene. Crowding him up in the corner of the ice house they demanded that he give them what money he had in his possession. "Dusty" let a mighty right fly straight out and followed it up with several left-hand jabs to the ribs of the half-intoxicated Weary Willies. They scattered before the husky Cerano De Bergerac and ran for the open. Miller followed and hollowed to a number of persons nearby to join in the chase. Up the railroad they went pell-mell and at the intersection of the C. H. & D. and J. M. & I., they scattered like so many rats. Miller kept after one fellow intent on at least administering a little punishment to him. But although Miller is known as a sprinter—or was in his younger days—he could not keep up the pace set by the fleet-footed, deer-like Marathon speed of the young Happy Hooligan. Miller had to stop for breath while the lad speeded away. But he kept up the hunt. A few mnutes later, on rounding a corner near the home of George Eubanks, Miller saw the fellow sitting complacently on the front veranda, talking with a woman with a nonchalant air, to give out the impression that he lived there and "was not the fellow." But Miller knew better. Without saying a word Miller dashed up on the porch and to the astonishment of the lady started to drub the fellow "within an inch of his life." The lady was almost frightened into hysterics—it all came so sudden.

After putting the fellow through the third degree Miller started to march him off to jail. They did not go a block when he broke loose and started on the Marathon again. Miller followed, but drew up lame after a slow half block. A sidewalk flag—or flagging—was thrown in his face and he gave up the ghost. The police were notified and City Marshal Price searched everywhere for the hoboes but learned that they had left the city on a side-door sleeper, soon after the incident occurred. Miller did not lose any money and but for the game stand he took he would have lost his Ingersoll watch—and a roll of ninety dollars he had in his jumpers.

DR. OTIS CALDWELL NOW MAKING GOOD

Former Rushville Boy is First Assistant to the Chief Surgeon on Big Four.

IS LOCATED AT INDIANAPOLIS

Of a former Rushville boy, reared in this city, but born in Greensburg, the Greensburg News says:

"A Greensburg boy who is making his mark in the world is Dr. Otis Caldwell, now located at Indianapolis. Dr. Caldwell was here Monday for a short visit to his mother and friends, and informs us that he is now chief assistant to the head surgeon of the Big Four Railway company, with headquarters at Indianapolis.

"Dr. Caldwell is deserving of all that a bright future holds for him, for what he possesses he has won by persistent work and his own tireless energy. When a student in the Indiana Medical College he was considered away above the average of his class, and this record made in student days easily brought him to the attention of the eminent surgeon who made a place for him in his office. Dr. Caldwell is making a specialty of surgery, and we are sure that he will yet make his mark in the world."

LOCAL TALENT IN VAUDEVILLE SKIT

RUSHVILLE DAY IS TO BE A BIG EVENT

One Day of the Andersonville Home-Coming Set Aside For Local People.

GOOD PROGRAM IS ARRANGED

Several Rushville people are preparing to attend Rushville Day at the Andersonville home-coming, which will be on Thursday, August 12. A special program is being arranged for that day and among the numerous attractions are a speech by A. E. Martin of this city and an old fiddlers' contest in which several local men will probably take part.

Andersonville residents are making active preparations to make this by far the biggest day in the life of the little town, the home of many great men—and the Four County Herald. Rev. Walter Kaler is secretary of the home-coming organization.

Rushville is going to boom.

NEGOCIATIONS ARE RE-OPENED

Connersville Citizens Hustling to Line up D. M. Parry of Indianapolis.

MADE HIM A PROPOSITION

Not Agreeable at the Time But a New Sop Will Now be Thrown to Him.

There is a possibility that the big automobile factory which was mentioned in the Examiner a few days ago, may yet come to Connersville, says the Connersville Examiner. The proposition, as made to Mr. Parry at the time, was not agreeable to him, but he has been asked if he would consider the matter if it was submitted along other lines and he has intimated that he will.

It is not positively known that the local people interested will be able to make a proposition that Mr. Parry will accept, but it is very likely that they will do their best trying.

Many towns are hustling for automobile factories just now. Not many of them are getting the factories. It is conceded that Connersville has many advantages over most towns in this line of manufacture, and if any place appeals to makers of automobiles Connersville certainly is the place.

But the time is fast approaching when the matter of automobile factories in this country will be fixed. If Connersville is to get into the game it must get in now or "forever hold its peace."

CARRIERS VISITED HERE

Uncle Sam's Men From Connersville Spent Last Eevning Here.

DEFIER OF SUN'S RAYS.

How a Cloth Used In India Protects Its Wearers From Heat.

In the recent period of very hot weather many persons whose lives might have been saved, according to physicians, died of sunstroke in New York city. The figures of the department of health show that in the week ended July 3 thirty-two persons died of insolation. In the corresponding period last year only five persons died from the same cause, but of course the weather was much cooler then.

Physicians declare that one of the chief reasons for so many deaths is that apparently no effort is made to select suitable clothing for summer, either in respect to color or material. This is particularly true in the cases of New York city's guardians, the policemen and firemen, who from the very nature of their occupations are exposed to extreme heat, either directly from the sun or of artificial origin. And yet these men are obliged by the city government to wear heavy uniforms of dark color, which more readily absorb the sun's rays than anything else, and in the cases of the policemen at least are obliged to wear them tightly buttoned. Many policemen have complained of this handicap this summer.

In this connection the department of commerce and labor recently issued a bulletin concerning a cloth specially made for those exposed to the sun. Consul General William H. Michael of Calcutta has sent samples of the cloth, which is manufactured in India for the use of farmers and others, and writes concerning it. The cloth is called thatcho and shikari. It is made on scientific principles to conform to nature's plan of warding off the sun's rays, as exemplified in the color of the skin and the pigments under the skin. The retail price of woolen thatcho in Calcutta is $2 per yard, double width, and of cotton thatcho 66 cents per yard, single width. The retail price of green shikari is 33 cents per yard, single width.

Samples of the cloth will be lent by the bureau of manufacturers to American textile interests.

WITNESSES NOT DISCONCERTED

Subdued Sneers and Incredulous Smiles Ineffective.

PROGRESS OF SUTTON CASE

Another Witness, Facing the Incredulous Smiles of the Deceased's Mother and Sister, Testifies That Lieutenant Sutton Died From a Self-Inflicted Revolver Shot—The Punching Sutton Had Previously Received Not Sufficient to Cause Death, Witness Testifies.

Annapolis, Md., July 22.—Only four witnesses out of the fifteen so far subpoenaed by the government have been examined in the naval board inquiry which is investigating the death of Lieutenant James N. Sutton of Portland, Ore.

H. W. Vandyke of Washington, counsel for Sutton's mother, said after court, that outside of Mrs. Rose Sutton Parker, sister of Lieutenant Sutton, there would probably be no witnesses beyond those on the government list, which includes a number of witnesses subpoenaed at the request of the Suttons.

Henry E. Davis, chief counsel for the Suttons, had not much more than started his cross-examination of Lieutenant Edward S. Willing, now attached to the marine barracks at the navy yard in Philadelphia, when the hearing was adjourned for the day. In a few minor points, referring principally to the description of the immediate scene of the tragedy, Mr. Davis succeeded in showing discrepancies in Lieutenant Willing's testimony at this and the former inquiry. In essential particulars, Lieutenant Willing's story differed little from that of his brother officers. Willing, who was officer of the day at the marine camp, and was routed out by Lieutenants Utley and Bevan when Sutton was running wild in camp with two revolvers prior to the tragedy, as former witnesses had testified, was the first man to say that he reached the scene of the tragedy in time to see Adams punching Sutton. Lieutenant Bevan, who ran down to the place where they had all heard the first shots, almost at the same time as Lieutenant Willing, testified that he saw no blows exchanged. As Lieutenant Willing on cross-examination described Sutton, either standing or on his knees, with Adams holding him by the back of the neck with one hand and punching him with the other, it was too much for Mrs. Parker, who sat directly opposite the witness. She smiled incredulously at Willing and, turning to Mr. Vandyke, one of her counsel, said indignantly: "Imagine a wild man, as they describe my brother to have been, standing up with a revolver in each hand and taking a punching like that. It is wholly incredible."

If subdued sneers and incredulous smiles would have disconcerted the witnesses, they would have been hopelessly squelched by those frequently directed at them by Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Sutton.

The judge advocate sked the witness if he thought the punching Sutton got would have killed him or if the witness had any way of knowing whether Sutton was dead before the last shot was fired. It was known that Mrs. Sutton impressed upon Major Leonard her belief that her son was beaten to death and afterward shot. The witness answered these questions in the negative and said there was no doubt in his mind that Sutton pulled the trigger of the revolver when he was shot. Lieutenant Bevan create a stir in court when he testified that six weeks prior to the shooting Sutton had told him that life in the marine corps had no attraction for him and that some day he would shoot himself.

Written Agreement Demanded.

Butler, Pa., July 22.—Despite the assurances of the officials of the Standard Steel Car company that as soon as conditions warrant an increase in wages it would be granted, the striking workingmen at the plants of the car company, the Butler Wheel company and the Standard Forged Steel Wheel company have voted to remain idle until their employers sign a written agreement granting them immediate increase in wages and refunds on back rentals of company houses.

Faced Mob of a Thousand.

Atlanta, Ga., July 22.—The bravery of Sheriff McKinney and three lone deputies, who with drawn revolvers faced a mob of a thousand angry men at Vinnings, Ga., saved the life of a negro charged with criminal assault. Leveling their revolvers upon the mob leaders, they drove out of danger and rushed the negro to Atlanta, where he was placed in the tower prison for safe-keeping.

Trip Delayed Five Days.

Honolulu, July 22.—The Pacific steamship Korea, bound from the Orient to San Francisco, will sail from this port today, five days behind her schedule time. The delay is due to the fact that the vessel has been in quarantine here on account of the discovery of a case of plague on board.

MOVEMENT MADE TO ENJOIN STRIKERS

Tin Plate Company Seeks Federal Injunction.

Elwood, Ind., July 22.—Judge F. E. Baker of the Seventh United States judicial circuit, on application of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company, has issued a temporary restraining order against the strikers here to prevent them from interfering with the operations of the company in any way. A hearing on the injunction proceedings is set for next Monday at Goshen. The petition presented to Judge Baker by E. R. Call, attorney for the company, sets forth that the instrument is against the officials and members of the two organizations. It is explained, however, that the injunction is not against the members of the labor organizations who have conducted themselves in an orderly manner, but against the hotheads who could not be controlled by their superiors or by the police officials of the city or county.

It is charged that this "rabble" had grown so bold that the hotheads had begun making threats against the company's property, intimidating employes, and greatly handicapping the company in carrying on its business. When news of the injunction became known the pickets deserted their posts and the headquarters of the labor bodies became empty.

FACES PRISON LIFE

Cornelius P. Shea, Labor Leader, Convicted of Attempted Murder.

New York, July 22.—Cornelius P. Shea, former president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, was convicted of an attempt to murder Alice Walsh, a former Chicago waitress, with whom Shea is alleged to have lived. Shea's only refense was that he had been drinking heavily. He will be sentenced Friday.

Professor Matteucci Dead.

Rome, July 22.—Professor R. V. Matteucci, director of the royal observatory on Mt. Vesuvius, who was famous for his devotion to duty during eruptions of the volcano, is dead at the observatory.

Beach Resort's Heavy Loss.

Long Branch, N. J., July 22.—Two hotels and seven business houses were destroyed by a fire that swept a block of Brighton avenue between Second and Sairs avenues, causing $100,000 damage.

Boy Drowned in Gravel Pit.

Lebanon, Ind., July 22.—Cleo Walton, aged eleven, was drowned in the Partner gravel pit, just west of Lebanon.

CARPENTERS UNION

Building For National Headquarters Dedicated Today.

Indianapolis, July 22.—The handsome three-story office building erected in this city for the national headquarters of the Carpenters' and Joiners' union was dedicated this afternoon with appropriate ceremonies.

The dedicatory services, which were conducted on a platform in front of the beautiful new building in Michigan street, began at 3 o'clock, but the new building was open all day for inspection by the general public.

The dedicatory services were opened by the Rev. W. G. Clinton. There were short talks by Governor Marshall and Mayor Bookwalter and the dedicatory address by Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor.

Frank Stalnaker will be the toastmaster at the banquet in the German House tonight.

Practically every large city in the country was represented at this dedication, and Indiana carpenters were largely in evidence. President William D. Huber and Secretary Frank Duffy said that at least 400 out-of-town representatives of carpenters, and labor in general, are on hand for the dedicatory service and the banquet tonight.

GALVESTON PROFITS BY ITS HUGE SEAWALL

Repetition of the Disaster of 1900 Was Averted.

Galveston, July 22.—For a time during Wednesday's hurricane heavy loss was feared as the wind attained a velocity of over sixty-eight miles an hour. The sea wall, however, protected the city, and aside from some damage on the beach front, where two bathhouses were destroyed, the city suffered little. There was no loss of life. The storm has now abated. The property loss will probably not exceed $100,000.

Besides the destruction of the two large bathhouses on the outside of the sea wall, washed away by the waves, there was some loss to small craft and fishing piers on the jetties were destroyed. The storm was a West Indian hurricane.

Far out in the gulf, on Tarpon fishing pier, seven miles from the city, where the storm whipped over the jetty into the bay, ten fishermen were washed from the rocky promontories into the gulf and drowned.

The hurricane swept the entire gulf coast with an intensity and viciousness that has seldom been equaled in a country where destructive storms are not unusual. It had its origin on the Atlantic coast and swung westward and southward, devastating the entire gulf coast, even as far south as Matagorda bay. That some lives were lost and that much property was destroyed is the general belief. With wires down and railroad communication hampered, the exact loss is impossible to estimate.

From other cities in the affected area come tales of narrow escapes and much destruction of property. The only anxiety expressed now is for the smaller towns, villages and summer resorts with which the gulf coast is so thickly settled. In the history of other gulf storms, it has been the villages which suffered most from the waters. The entire gulf coast is very low and offers absolutely no protection from the storm of waves.

Loss of Life Elsewhere.

Galveston, Tex., July 22.—It is reported that there has been considerable loss of life at Palacios and Blessing, two small towns on the gulf in Matagorda county. It is also reported that Bay City suffered greatly from the hurricane.

Utah Now Produces Rubber.

Recently in Wasatch county, Utah, adjacent deposits of elaterite in that region, a new substance known as tabbyite, called after Chief Tabby of the Unita Indians, who revealed the deposits to the whites, has been found to reduce elaterite to a practical working basis as rubber. Belts, mats, insulation material, etc., have already been turned out by an amalgamation of the two mineral substances. Chemical analysis shows the proper proportions of the constituents of rubber.

New Terrors.

Grandma seems uncommon nervous
As she looks the family o'er;
Now and then says: "Saints preserve us!
'Twan't like this in days of yore.
Now and then some one by rocking
Boats left mournful tales to tell,
Or a man whose fate was shocking
Swam out wisely, but too well.

"But today I'm apprehensive
Of disasters worse, I ween.
We are taking trips extensive
On the wings of gasoline.
And they'll merely call me silly
When my voice is heard afar:
'Do not rock the airship, Willie!'
'John, stop racing with that star!' "

When You Think

Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from pain. It establishes regularity, subdues inflammation, heals ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 31 stamps.

FOR CLERK.

We are authorized to announce the name of Herbert C. Flint for Clerk of the city of Rushville, subject to the decision of the Republican nominating convention.

We are authorized to announce the name of Houston H. Aultman for Clerk of the City of Rushville, subject to the decision of the Republican nominating convention.

We are authorized to announce the name of Samuel G. Gregg, for renomination for Clerk of the city of Rushville subject to the decision of the Republican nominating convention.

CITY TREASURER.

We are authorized to announce that Melvin L. Moor is a candidate for City Treasurer, subject to the decision of the Republican city nominating convention.

FOR MAYOR.

We are authorized to announce the name of W. O. Headlee as a candidate for mayor of the city of Rushville, subject to the decision of the Republican city nominating convention.

The next United States senator from Indiana will be a Republican. And his name won't be J. Frank either.

A "harvest hand" who reached Clay Center, Kansas, last week was "togged out" in a little green cap, a crimson sweater, new blue overalls, polka-dot socks and tan oxfords.

The Indiana Supreme court in deciding that townships cannot be compelled to supply conveyances to carry children to and from school, argues that it is better for the health of the pupils to walk some distance in the open air than to be carried, usually in closed covered carriages or buses. When roads were poor and the blazed path a necessity, and distances greater, the children walked and thought it no hardship. They were attentive to their studies, too, and enjoyed the noonday lunch better, probably, than the pupils of today.

President Taft's position on the tariff question is impregnable, not alone from the standpoint of partisanship, but from the standpoint of good faith. The Republican party promised tariff revision. There was no reasoning man who imagined that the words meant upward revision. If that feeling had been general the result of the election might have been different. As the leader of the party, the President has done well in stating his position without equivocation. He desires his party to keep faith, to fulfill its promises. That is an honest platform to stand upon and honest Republicans will follow the leader.

The recent dethronement—first of the Sultan of Turkey and the Shaw of Persia—and the prevailing unrest in India, indicates a decided growth in Asiatic sentiment in favor of popular institutions.

This antagonism to autocratic government, this evidence of the potency of progressive ideas and the principles of freedom and liberty in those parts of the world, whose civilization has so long been considered archaic, is one of the most significant phases of world affairs today. It is evidence that the world moves forward, that the law of progress is irresistable.

India, though ruled by a Western power for more than a century, is just beginning to awaken to the Western spirit, and this awakening bodes no good for the Western ruler. As the Pacific is likely to be the theater of the developing commerce of the twentieth century, Asia promises to be the stage of the more important political dramas of the time.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

BUILDS OWN MACHINE.

(Columbus Republican.)

Clessie Cummins is completing a runabout, every part of which he has built himself. He built the engine last winter and has been working this spring and summer at odd times on the body of the craft. The car is built along racing lines, but is being constructed more for a pleasure vehicle than for racing.

PATENT KEY-RING TAG.

(Shelbyville Republican.)

Eugene Milleson has received a patent from the department at Washington, D. C., on a key-ring tag. The tag will be made of two small pieces of metal, and will work as a slide. A hole is made in one end, through both pieces of metal and the ring through them holds them in place. On one side will be the address and on the other directions in case the keys are lost. Between the two pieces of metal or slides is a stamp. This stamp is fastened on the metal and when the keys are lost and found, the slide with the stamp on it is reversed and the keys either placed in a mail box or taken to the postoffice and there can be delivered to the address of the slide.

MOSQUITO LULLABY.

Hush, little skeeterbug, hush a-by,
Mother will rock you, don't cry!
I know you are hungry, my little sweet,
With nothing to drink and so little to eat.
Some people are tough and their blood is thin,
But others are tender with dainty skin—
Hush, little buzzer, go by.

Hush, little skeeterbug, hush a-by,
This is your harvest time, just you try!
Chubby old ladies and thin old boys,
Plump little children and, joy of joys,
Fat little babies, all fresh and sweet
And juicy and lovely are you to eat!
Hush, little buzzer, go by.
Hush, little skeeterbug, hush a-by,
Soon you'll be ready to buzz and fly!
Daddy will sharpen your dear little bill
And mother will teach you to bite, she will!
Maybe they think we are slow and dumb,
But we're not afraid of petroleum!
Hush, little buzzer, go by.

HAVE STRONG CASE AGAINST JOHNSON

Accused Gold Thief Languishes in the County Jail With Gloomy Prospects.

LANDLADY IS AGAINST HIM

A. S. Johnson, the alleged gold thief, now languishesy in the county bastile. He will likely be given a preliminary hearing before Mayor Cowing Friday morning.

Of his release at Shelbyville the Shelbyville News says:

"I want you," emphatically declared Marshall Price, from Rushville, when Justice VanCleave granted the dismissal. Johnson, though protesting, submitted to arrest on the charge of larceny, the specific act being the robbery of the dental office of Dr. Sparks in Rushville. Mrs. Hatfield, with whom he is alleged to have roomed at the time, identified Johnson in the Ray hotel the day of his arrest. She claims she saw him go to the Sparks' office after watching for the dentist to go to dinner. An hour later Johnson and his wife and child, according to the Rushville woman, left the town.

THAT BASKET PICNIC.

The basket picnic to be given by the colored people of Rushville and Connersville next Sunday will include the pastors and members of all the colored churches in the two cities.

BY THE WAYSIDE

The other day a little red-faced Irishman approached a postoffice which had three letter boxes outside. One was labeled "City," another "Domestic," and the third "Foreign." He looked at the three in turn, then, as a puzzled expression crossed his face, scratched his head.

"Faith," he was heard to mutter, "I don't know in which wan to put th' letter. Sure, Katie's a domestic, an' she lives in the city all right, an' she's a furinr, too; but begobs how can th' thing go in both of the three holes at wance?"

Tuesday the clerks at the O. P. C. H. clothing store were busy working when they heard the low whining of a dog. They paid no attention to the noise at first, but as it grew louder and the supposed dog began to bark, they began a search. They looked in every crevice and corner where a dog might be concealed, but all of no avail. Finally it was decided the noise was coming from the cellar and the lantern was lighted and a search started in the lower regions. The clerk's in Hunt's hardware store next door had heard the noise and they were also making an investigation. The search was given up as fruitless when Miss Pauline Bradway emerged from behind some curtains, where she had been concealed, and disclosed the secret. She can imitate a barking dog perfectly and had them all "on her wagon."

A brilliant fire was held at high noon today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, 376 Dash street. A large number of persons were in attendance. Mrs. Smith made a charming escape in one of the season's latest kimonas. It was of pure silk with a pretty flower effect, ankle length and gored in the back. It can be made at slight expense and is very pretty. The Smiths have a lovely home and it is too bad that it was burned so badly. The firemen were becomingly garbed in blue suits and full cut red blouses.

The weather was delightful for an affair of this kind. The effort of a big man with a horn was a pleasing feature. Mr. Smith is in New York City, as was mentioned in the coming and going column today. There was lots of excitement. After a while the fire was put out. The cause of the fire Mrs. Jones, of 374 Fifth street, opened her house for Mrs. Smith and her two children, one a bright little boy of eight, and the other a lovely girl of five. The expression was heard on all sides that it was a most successful event. Somebody said that the affair would cost $2,000.

AMUSEMENTS

The Palace theater is drawing good crowds every night. The film last night "Bonnie Annie Laurie" is an excellent dramatic subject, depicting the story told in the poem Annie Laurie. The same program will be shown tonight and Miss Blanche Wrennick will sing "The Summertime is the Only Time."

A real rich and racy comic program is offered at the Vaudet tonight in the film taken from an old adage, "There's no Fool Like an Old Fool." The film is said to depict a live story of comedy. The Vaudet has a complete change of program every night and will continue to do so. Earl Robertson will sing "Won't You Come Home, Daddy Dear."

"The Curfew Bell," the picture shown at the Star-Grand last night was one of the best dramatic subjects ever shown here. It depicts the story told in the poem, "The Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight." The same film will be shown tonight and Miss Iva Brown will sing "If You've Won the Only One in All the World, You Ought to Win."

It seems that some of the big shows are still on the road though only playing small towns like Richmond, and no advance man has shown up here yet. The Richmond Item is as proud as a boy with red top boots. It says:

It's coming—Barnum & Bailey's the greatest show on earth, will show in this city on Monday, August 23. The advance manager for this great circus was in the city today securing the license from City Treasurer Johnson. So there's no doubt about it, and its coming is not merely a rumor. In a few days the city will be gaily decorated with bills and posters and the date will be looked forward to with a great deal of pleasure by all the small boys (and some of the older ones, too) in this community.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Mention was made in the Daily Republican several days ago regarding the removal of the terminal from Cambridge City to Richmond, and through trains being run over this division. Of the proposed change the Richmond Item says:

"To facilitate the handling of the J. M. & I. trains, when the terminal at Cambridge City is abolisheid, the Pennsylvania lines have decided to build a "cut off" through Posey township, Fayette county, in order to make better connections with the Indianapolis division main line. The "cut-off" connection will be made at a point about four miles west of Cambridge City in Henry county.

"The exact location of the new track has not been determined upon. Surveyors are now going over the possible routes, establishing grades and distances. The new track will be built at the same time the double track is made on the main line.

"The changing of the connection between the Indianapolis division and the J. M. & I. was necessary by the elevation of the tracks at Cambridge City which will be raised to a height of twenty-eight feet. The expense of raising the J. M. & I. tracks if the connection would have been left at Cambridge City would have been unusually high."

CHAPTER XIV.

TWO CALLS FROM THE ENEMY.

DEPPINGHAM was up and about quite early the next morning—that is, quite early for him. He had his rolls and coffee and strolled out in the shady park for a smoke. The princess, whose sense of humiliation had not been lessened by the fitful sleep of the night before, was walking in the shade of the trees on the lower terrace, beyond the fountains and the artificial lake.

"I was thinking of you," she said in greeting as he came up.

"How nice you are," he said. "But, my dear, is it wise in you to be thinking of us handsome devils? It's a most dangerous habit—thinking of other men."

"But, Deppy, dear, the prince isn't here," she said, falling into his humor. "That makes quite a difference, doesn't it?"

"Your logic is splendid. Pray resume your thoughts of me—if they were pleasant and agreeable. I'll not blow on you to Karl. By the way, I have a compliment for you. Browne says your hair is more beautiful than Pong's. That's quite a compliment. Titian never even dreamed of hair like Pong's."

"You know, Deppy," she said, with a pout, "I am very unhappy about my hair. It is quite red. I don't see why I should have hair like that of a red cocker. It seems so animalish."

"Rubbish! Why should you complain? Look at my hair. It's been likened more than once to that of a Jersey cow."

"Oh, how I adore Jersey cows! Now, I wouldn't mind that a bit."

They were looking toward the lower gates while carrying on this frivolous conversation. A man had just entered and was coming toward them. Both recognized the tall figure in gray flannels.

"I trust I am not intruding," Chase said as he came up. His gaze was as much for Deppingham as for the princess, his remark quite impersonal.

"Not at all, not at all," said Deppingham quickly, his heart leaping to the conclusion that the way to the American bar was likely to be opened at last. "Charmed to have you here, Mr. Chase. You've been most unneighborly. Have you been presented to her highness, the— Oh, to be sure. Of course you have. Stupid of me."

"We met ages ago," she said, with an ingenuous smile, which would have disarmed Chase if he had been prepared for anything else. As a matter of fact, he had approached her in the light of an adventurer who expects nothing and grasps at straws.

"In the dark ages," said he so ruefully that her smile grew. He had come, in truth, to ascertain why her husband had not come with her.

"But not the forgotten variety, I fancy," said Deppingham shrewdly.

It would be impossible for the princess to forget the greatest of all fools," said Chase.

"He was no worse than other mortals," said she.

"Thank you," said Chase. Then he turned to Lord Deppingham. "My visit requires some explanation, Lord Deppingham. You have said that I am unneighborly. No doubt you appreciate my reasons. One has to respect appearances," with a dry smile. "When one is in doubt he must do as the Moslems do, especially if the Moslems don't want him to do as he wants to do."

"No doubt you're right, but it sounds a bit involved," murmured Deppingham. "Lady Deppingham will be delighted to see you. Are you ready to come in, princess?"

They started toward the chateau, keeping well in the shade of the boxed trees, the princess between the two men.

"I say, Chase, do you mind relieving my fears a bit? With all due respect to your estimable clients, it occurs to me that they are likely to break over the traces at any moment and raise the very old Harry at somebody else's expense. I'd like to know if my head is really safe."

"I came to see you in regard to that very thing, Lord Deppingham. I don't want to alarm you, but I do not like the appearance of things. They don't trust me and they hate you—quite naturally. I'm rather sorry that our British man-of-war is out of reach. Pray don't be alarmed, princess. It is most improbable that anything evil will happen. And, in any event, we can hold out against them until relief comes."

"We?" demanded Deppingham.

"Certainly. If it comes to an assault of any kind upon the chateau I trust that I may be considered as one of you. I won't serve assassins and bandits—at least not after they've got beyond my control. Besides, if the worst should come they won't discriminate in my favor."

"Why do you stay here, Mr. Chase?" asked the princess. "You admit that they do not like you or trust you. Why do you stay?"

"I came out here to escape certain consequences," said he candidly. "I'll stay to enjoy the uncertain ones. I am not in the least alarmed on my own account. The object of my visit, Lord Deppingham, is to ask you to be on your guard up here. After the next steamer arrives and they learn that Sir John will not withdraw me in submission to Rasula's demand, with the additional news that your solicitors have filed injunctions and have begun a bitter contest that may tie up the estate for years—then, I say, we may have trouble. It is best that you should know what to expect. I am not a traitor to my cause in telling you this. It is no more than I would expect from you were the conditions reversed."

"It's mighty decent in you, Chase, to put us on our guard. Would you mind talking it over with Browne and me after luncheon? You'll stay to luncheon, of course?"

"Thank you. It may be my death sentence, but I'll stay."

In the wide east gallery they saw Lady Deppingham and Bobby Browne deeply engrossed in conversation. Deppingham started and involuntarily allowed his hand to go to his temple as if to check the thought that flitted through his brain.

"Good Lord," he said to himself, "is it possible that they are considering that —— Saunders' proposition? Surely they can't be thinking of that!"

As he led the way across the green Browne's voice came to them distinctly. He was saying earnestly:

"The mere fact that we have come out to this blessed isle is a point in favor of the islanders. Chase won't overlook it, and you may be sure Sir John Brodney is making the most of it. Our coming is a guarantee that we consider the will valid. It is an admission that we regard it as sound. If not, why should we recognize its provisions, even in the slightest detail? Britt is looking for hallucinations and all"—

"Sh!" came in a loud hiss from somewhere near at hand, and the two in the gallery looked down with startled eyes upon the distressed face of Lord Deppingham. They started to their feet at once, astonishment and wonder in their faces. They could scarcely believe their eyes. The enemy!

He was smiling broadly as he lifted his helmet, smiling in spite of the discomfort that showed so plainly in Deppingham's manner.

Chase was warmly welcomed by the two heirs. Lady Agnes was especially cordial. Her eyes gleamed joyously as she lifted them to meet his admiring gaze. She was amazingly pretty. The conviction that Chase had mistaken her for Lady Agnes the evening before took a fresh grasp upon the mind of the Princess Genevra. A shameless wave of relief surged through her heart.

Chase was presented to Drusilla Browne, who appeared suddenly upon the scene, coming from no one knew where. There was a certain strained look in the Boston woman's face and a suspicious redness near the bridge of her little nose.

"It's very good of you," said the enemy after all of them had joined in the invitation. "Why is it that I am more fortunate than your own attorneys? I am but a humble lawyer, after all, no better than they. Would you mind telling me why I am honored by an invitation to sit at the table with you?" The touch of easy sarcasm was softened by the frank smile that went with it. Deppingham felt it his duty to explain.

"It's—it's—er—oh, yes, it's because you're a diplomat," he finally remarked in triumph. It was a grand recovery, thought he. "Saunders is an ass, and Britt would be one if Browne could only admit it, as I do. Rubbish! Don't let that trouble you. Eh, Browne?"

"Besides," said Bobby Browne breezily, "I haven't heard of your clients inviting you to lunch, Mr. Chase. The cases are parallel."

"I'm not so sure about his clients' wives," said Deppingham, with a vast haw-haw! Chase looked extremely uncomfortable.

"I am told that some of them are very beautiful," said Genevra sedately.

"Other men's wives always are, I've discovered," said Chase gallantly.

The party had moved over to the great stone steps which led down into the gardens. Chase was standing beside Lady Deppingham, and both of them were looking toward his distant bungalow.

"That is my home, princess. It is the first time I have seen it from your point of view, Lady Deppingham. I must say that it doesn't seem as far from the chateau to the bungalow as it does from the bungalow to the chateau. There have been times when the chateau seemed to be thousands of miles away."

"When in reality it was at your very feet," she said, with a bright look into his eyes. For some unaccountable reason Genevra resented that look and speech.

"Is that really where you live?" she asked, so innocently that Chase had difficulty in controlling his expression.

At that instant something struck sharply against the stone column above Chase's head. At least three persons saw the little puff of smoke in the hills far to the right. Every one heard the distant crack of a rifle. The bullet had dropped at Chase's feet before the sound of the report came floating to their ears. No one spoke as he stooped and picked up the warm, deadly missile. Turning it over in his fingers, he said coolly, although his cheek had gone white:

"With Von Blitz's compliments, ladies and gentlemen. He is calling on me by proxy."

"Good God, Chase," cried Browne, "they're trying to murder us! Get back, every one! Inside the doors!"

"I'm sorry to bring my troubles to your door," said Chase. "It was meant for me, not for any of you. The man who fired that did not intend to kill me. He was merely giving voice to his pain and regret at seeing me in such bad company." He was smiling calmly and did not take a single step to follow them to safety.

"Come in, Chase! Don't stand out there to be shot at."

"I'll stay here for a few minutes, Mr. Browne, if you don't mind, just to convince you all that the shot was not intended to kill. They're not ready to kill me yet. I'm sure Lord Deppingham will understand. He has been shot at often enough since he came to the island."

He lighted a cigarette and coolly leaned against the column, his gaze bent on the spot where the smoke had been seen. The others were grouped inside the doors, where they could see without being seen. A certain sense of horror possessed all of the watchers.

"For heaven's sake, why does he stand there?" cried the princess at last. "I can endure it no longer. It may be as he says it is, but it is foolhardy to stand there and taunt the pride of that marksman. I can't stay here and wait for it to come. How can"—

"He's been there for ten minutes, princess," said Browne—"plenty of time for another try."

Before they were aware of her intention the princess left the shelter and boldly walked across the open space to the side of the man. He started and opened his lips to give vent to a sharp command.

"It is so easy to be a hero, Mr. Chase, when one is quite sure there is no real danger," she said, with distinct irony in her tones. "One can afford to be melodramatic if he knows his part so well as you know yours."

Chase felt his face burn. It was a direct declaration that he had planned the whole affair in advance. He flicked the ashes from his cigarette and then tossed it away, hesitating long before replying.

"Nevertheless I have the greatest respect for the courage which brings you to my side. I dare say you are quite justified in your opinion of me. It all must seem very theatrical to you. I had not thought of it in that light. I shall now retire from the center of the stage. It will be perfectly safe for you to remain here—just as it was for me." He was leaving her without another word or look. She repented.

"I am sorry for what I said," she said eagerly. "And"—she looked up at the hills with a sudden widening of her eyes—"I think I shall not remain."

Chase made light of the occurrence, but sought to impress upon the others the fact that it was prophetic of more serious events in the future. In a perfectly cold blooded manner he told them that the islanders might rise against them at any time.

"The people are angry, and they will become desperate. Their interests are mine, of course. I am perfectly sincere in saying to you, Lady Deppingham, and to you, Mr. Browne, that in time they will win out against you in the courts. But they are impatient. They are not the kind who can wait and be content. It is impossible for you to carry out the provisions of the will, and they know it. That is why they resent the delays that are impending."

Deppingham told him of the scheme proposed by Saunders, treating it as a vast joke. Chase showed a momentary sign of uneasiness, but covered it instantly by laughing with the others. Strange to say, he had been instructed from London to look out for just such a coup on the part of the heirs—not that the marriage could be legally established, but that it might create a complication worth avoiding.

He could not help looking from Lady Deppingham to Bobby Browne, a calculating gleam in his gray eyes. How very dangerous she could be! He was quite ready to feel very sorry for pretty Mrs. Browne. He sat opposite to the princess. His eyes were refreshing themselves after months of fatigue; his blood was coursing through new veins. And yet his head was calling his heart a fool.

ODD ARCTIC PEOPLE.

Stefansson Hears of Persons Who Are Not Eskimos.

THEIR HAIR IS NOT BLACK.

Hint That Mystery of Sir John Franklin's Missing Men or of a Vanished Icelandic Colony May Be Solved—Ill Effects of Civilization Were Found on All Sides.

A letter from V. Stefansson, the arctic explorer, received the other day by a friend who lives in Pleasantville, N. Y., hints at a possible unraveling either of the mystery which for more than sixty years has enveloped the fate of Sir John Franklin's two ships' companies or of the greater mystery concerning colonies of Icelanders who long ago migrated to Greenland and then disappeared.

Stefansson's letter, dated "Barrow, Alaska, Feb. 12," and postmarked "Nome, Alaska, April 5," in transit, says:

"Here I am, farther west than you probably expected me to go in winter. This is a whaling station, the most northerly one in America, the most easterly one of those whose egress is by the Pacific ocean. There is here also the most northerly postoffice under American control, and it has two outgoing reindeer mails in winter, Nov. 1 and Feb. 15, as well as a ship mail in July or August. I am here to write letters and reports to the museum.

"My winter camp is, as planned, on the lower Colville river. I left it about the time the sun went away and have since wandered as far west as Wainwright inlet, about a hundred miles southwest of Point Barrow and 300 from our winter camp, stopping at every Eskimo settlement, an unpleasant thing in many cases, for the habits and diseases of civilization are everywhere evident, unhealthy people crowded into unventilated and uncomfortable houses, a complete contrast to what it was twenty years ago here, I am told, and to what it still is to the eastward, where every house, no matter how crowded, is always warm and well ventilated.

"At Point Barrow and west of there 90 per cent of the people have abandoned the warm, semi-excavated house with its door in the floor, the advantages of which are well known to you, for flimsy overground structures imitating white men's houses. The walls of these are so thin that even were they air tight, as they often are (very nearly), enough cold comes in by conduction through the boards to form hoarfrost here and there and ice in the corners and under the beds. Instead of a door and a ventilating chimney always open, these houses have no ventilator, the door is hastily closed whenever opened, and every crack is filled with a rag, tallow or chewing gum.

"A doctor who has been at Barrow seven years, since 1896 (he has had vacations) tells me that the death rate from tuberculosis has more than doubled in ten years, the period of the change (under missionary and other influences) from the 'insanitary, filthy' native houses to the 'tidy, modern' damp cockleshells that are murdering the people.

"This has been a digression. It would take many pages of print to show up thoroughly the effects of civilization at Point Barrow and west of it.

"In three or four days I shall start east for Colville and spend a month or two there at least. Many of the people there had never seen a white man when we arrived, but they have associated for many years with Eskimos who are Christians, etc., and their influence has been marked. They are therefore from my point of view sophisticated.

"On October last we divided our party in two sections. Dr. Anderson, with an Eskimo family, went into the mountains south of Barter island, about seventy-five miles southeast from Flaxman island and 125 from my camp. My party consisted of a man, wife, baby and one man besides. Dr. Anderson was to try to make a living on mountain sheep, river fish and ptarmigan. Our hope was deer, caribou, of which we got fifteen, not nearly enough, though more than any Eskimo hunter of the Colville country.

"As heretofore, the plan is to spend next winter a good way to the eastward, 500 or 600 miles as one travels it east of the Colville near the mouth of the Coppermine river or on Victoria Land. Some Eskimos who saw some of these people last year tell me that in a party of twenty they saw one middle aged man and one woman of about eighteen who had hair as light as mine is and several whose hair was not black. Now, you know a pure blooded Eskimo is as black haired and stiff haired as any Japanese. With the disappearance of Franklin's two ships' companies in that neighborhood and with the lost Icelandic colonies of Greenland in mind, 'the problem has its interesting features.'"

The letter closes with memoranda concerning articles Stefansson has prepared for publication, which are now on their way.

New Holiday Planned.

The Belleville (N. J.) board of trade has inaugurated a movement to set apart a day in August of each year to be known as "business men's day," when all business places that close on legal holidays will be expected to suspend business. John H. Eastwood, president of the board, has named a committee to plan for the observance of the day.

FIRST ARRESTED THE WIFE

When Told That Charges Against Her Would Probably Be Dismissed if She Revealed Whereabouts of Missing Husband, Mrs. Louis Carter "Came Through" With the Desired Information and Alleged Instructor of Mishawaka Boy Burglars Is Now in Jail.

Mishawaka, Ind., July 22.—Louis Carter, alleged instructor of Mishawaka's gang of boy burglars and firebugs, was arrested in Chicago. Chief of Police B. F. Jarrett has returned to Mishawaka with the prisoner.

The arrest of Carter is due to the arrest of Mrs. Carter. After questioning the woman with no result a warrant was sworn out for her arrest, charging her with receiving stolen goods. Mrs. Carter was made to understand that if she would confess the whereabouts of Carter the case against her would probably be dismissed. Complying with this request she gave up a letter she had just received from her husband.

SERIOUS GUN FIGHT

Two Shot Following Altercation in an Amusement Resort.

Vincennes, Ind., July 22.—As the result of a shooting which occurred in Lakewood Amusement park last evening, Clifton C. Gosnell, jr., twenty-two years old, and Alva R. Pickell, twenty-four, lie at the point of death in the Good Samaritan hospital, and Charles Humphreys, aged twenty-eight, is held in the county jail to await the outcome of Pickell's injuries. Walter Meyer, a stock dealer of Monroe City, this county, is also under arrest and will be held as a witness to the shooting.

According to the story of witnesses, Pickell, Meyer and Misses Fern Hawkins and Ida Smith came from Monroe City and after securing a few bottles of beer, went to the park. Gosnell is assistant manager of the park and informed the party that drinking was not permitted on the grounds and that it would not be tolerated.

Pickell is alleged to have made an ugly remark, whereupon Gosnell is alleged to have seized him by the throat. While being held, Pickell drew a revolver, placed it to Gosnell's stomach and fired. Pickell started to run, but had not gone far before Charles Humphreys, an employe of the park, was in pursuit. The latter fired four shots, three of which took effect. The most serious of the wounds is one in the side. All persons who participated in the affair are prominent.

Three Held For Murder.

Watseka, Ill., July 22.—The special grand jury called to investigate the murder of John B. Sayler at Crescent City, indicted Dr. William Miller, Mrs. J. B. Sayler and John Grunden on a charge of murder. Ira Grunden was indicted as an accessory after the fact.

Tried to Change Seats in Boat.

Hammond, Ind., July 22.—In view of hundreds of persons at Cedar Lake, Peter Widera of Chicago was drowned. He was in a boat with three others, and while they were changing seats he was thrown into the water.

Found Alongside the Track.

South Bend, Ind., July 22.—J. P. Meyers, forty years old, is dead from the effects of a fall from a South Shore car. He was found in an unconscious condition by the side of the track near South Bend.

Burglars Disappointed.

Bedford, Ind., July 22.—Robbers blew the safe of the postoffice at Oolitic, but got nothing for their trouble. The outer door of the safe was torn away, but the inner door remained solid and fast.

Youthful Incendiary Sentenced.

South Bend, Ind., July 22.—Raymond Carter, the fifteen-year-old firebug, who confessed to the court that he had burned three barns, was sentenced to the Indiana reformatory.

No Clue to the Thief.

Noblesville, Ind., July 22.—The station of the Indiana Union Traction company in this city was robbed last night of $52, and the police have no clue to the thief.

Thought It Was Candy.

Hammond, Ind., July 22.—Mrs. Sam Lochlin allowed her two-year-old son to play with her handbag. The child opened it, found arsenic tablets, ate some and died.

Congressmen to Visit Hawaii.

Washington, July 22.—A party of twenty-five senators and members of the house of representatives is preparing to visit Hawaii.

COMBINATION TO AVERT WAR

United States, Brazil and Chile to Put On Brakes.

TO PREVENT CLASH OF ARMS

The Argentina-Bolivian Situation Has Reached the Point Where the Good Offices of Neighboring States and of Our Own Government May Be Judiciously Interposed to Avert a Bloody War—South American Diplomats Have Feeling That Storm Will Blow Over.

Washington, July 22.—The United States, Brazil and Chile will exert their moral influence to prevent any clash of arms between the republics of Argentina and Bolivia.

Chile and Brazil will remain neutral in the pending controversy, the former, it is understood, having indicated its attitude to this government already.

War between the two countries would be very regrettable to the United States government, which within proper bounds, would do its best to prevent it. The United States, however, will not intervene unless a request to do so is received from one or both nations involved. This has been its consistent policy in such cases.

That there will be much war talk growing out of the pending situation is the expectation of the South American diplomatic colony. That it will end in war they consider as a remote possibility. Argentina's action, they say, is simply an evidence of dissatisfaction with the attitude of her neighbor.

Will Try to Avert War.

Valparaiso, Chile, July 22.—The general opinion among government officials and military and naval officers here is that Chile will remain neutral in the event of hostilities between Bolivia and Argentina. There is no truth in the report that Chile is sending arms to Bolivia. It is stated that the Chilean government will use its good offices to avert war.

Will Fight if Necessary.

Lima, Peru, July 22.—The Peruvian government has received word of the breaking off of diplomatic relations between Bolivia and the Argentine republic. Peru does not desire war, but it is officially asserted she will protect her territory if attacked.

PROVED FRUITLESS

President's Efforts to Unite Tariff Conferees Was Unavaiiing.

Washington, July 22.—The dinner and conference at which the president's closest advisers and the tariff conferees were brought together last night in the effort to settle the differences regarding the tariff bill, ended at 11:30 o'clock with the disputes over raw materials no nearer adjustment than they were before the dinner invitations were issued.

Only one question was determined beyond appeal, and that was that the conferees will have to settle their own differences. Pains were taken, however, to convey the impression that this decision is not indicative of any absence of appreciation of the president's efforts. It merely confirmed what the "elder statesmen" had asserted from the first—that tariff making is trading, and the shrewdest dealer and the strongest section is bound to get the best of the argument. That this truism is responsible for the insurgent movements in the house and senate and party revolts in middle western states does not alter the situation.

Briefly stated, the representatives of the house and senate practically admitted that they were unable to forecast the outcome. Some of the conferees said after the dinner that no conference report would be signed until both houses had been canvassed to the probability of its being adopted. No one can say how much this will delay adjournment of the tariff session.

BANKER HELD UP

Real Estate Man at St. Louis Evidently Needed the Money.

St. Louis, July 22.—M. L. Dawson, a realty dealer, being refused a loan, demanded at the point of a revolver that S. Zelig, president of the Savings Trust company, give Dawson all the money that Zelig had in his pockets. Zelig gave Dawson $390, and as soon as Dawson left the bank building Zelig opened fire with a revolver. Dawson fired in return, but all bullets went wild. Dawson surrendered to the police and Zelig went to the police station to appear against him.

An Initiation Wound.

Muskogee, Okla., July 22.—While being initiated into the Order of Owls here, W. L. Tull, president of the Muskogee baseball club, was shot in the hip with a blank cartridge. He was taken to the city hospital and it is feared blood poisoning may set in.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

E. H. Harriman's health continues to show improvement.

Ground has been broken for a $750,000 central Young Men's Christian association building in London.

Dr. Wilbert McIntyre, member of the Canadian parliament from Strathcona, Alberta district, is dead.

State's Attorney Wyman's spectacular crusade against "protected vice" in Chicago has resulted in 105 indictments.

Before the biggest crowd ever assembled in North Dakota, Minor Heir, 1:59½, beat Dan Patch, 1:55, at Grand Forks.

J. Pierpont Morgan, who departed for his annual European trip on Feb. 2 last, has returned to New York, feeling fit but rather uncommunicative.

Wheat declined nearly 3 cents per bushel on the Chicago board of trade because of the profit-taking by leading longs based on a free movement of the new crop.

Twenty-five hundred workmen employed by Vickers Sons and Maxim on battleship construction are on strike as a protest against a reduction of wages.

A falling off of 20 per cent in the number of immigrant aliens admitted into the United States for the month of June as compared with May last is shown by statistics.

The strike of the employes of the Pressed Steel Car company has resolved itself into a waiting game on the part of both the strikers and the car company officials.

Dr. Allen G. Hall, dean of the law department of Vanderbilt university at Nashville, has been elected to the deanship of the law department of the University of Oklahoma.

PLAN TO REORGANIZE RED CROSS FORCES

Secretary Bicknell at Work In Central States.

Indianapolis, July 22.—The forces of the Red Cross society in Indiana are to be reorganized, according to the announcement of Ernest P. Bicknell, secretary of the American Red Cross society, who is at present in the city.

"The arrangement in Indiana," said Mr. Bicknell, "has worked more successfully than in many other states and has been effective. But we propose to reorganize the society in all of the states of the Union. As in Indiana, we propose to create a state board of about seven members, of which the governor of the state will be president. It will, in fact, be the finance board, and in times of distress this board will issue the call for funds or other contributions. Such a call will bear the signature of the governor and will in itself be of state character. Governor Marshall will approve of the plan and has consented to serve in Indiana, and Noble C. Butler, who has been the president of the Indiana branch, will be a member of that board. The other members have not yet been chosen.

COPYRIGHT, 1909 BY HARRIS & EWING

ERNEST P. BICKNELL.

"The next move will be to convert what has been the Indiana branch into a local society in Indianapolis. Its officers will remain the same. Each community can organize a local society. In Indiana we will create one more body. It will be the Indiana Red Cross Stamp society, which will sell the Red Cross stamps at holiday time. The Indiana organization had such signal success in this work that we are loth to lose its system and, furthermore, we will urge on other states the adoption of the methods which President Butler developed so successfully." Mr. Bicknell will remain in Indianapolis several days. From here he will go to Illinois and then to Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota on the same work, which he began in Ohio last week.

Briand May Be Premier.

Paris, July 22.—President Fallieres will offer the premiership to Leon Bourgeois, former minister of foreign affairs. Parliamentary circles, however, foresee that he will decline the honor, as his health is far from robust. M. Briand, minister of justice and worship, is the president's second choice.
